

What's on a Worcester Art Museum label?

- Artist's name— This often includes where the artist is from and when they were born/died.
- Title of the artwork
- Year or years the artwork was created
- Materials used to create the work
- Credit line— person or organization who donated the work, or statement that the Worcester Art Museum purchased the artwork.
- Accession number— this number first tells you the year the museum received the work. The number that comes after the decimal tells you what number acquisition the work was for the museum that year.

Make your own label!

Think of your bedroom as a Museum of Yourself. Pick an object in your bedroom and write a museum label for it.

The object I picked is:

What is the artist's name who created your object? Is the artist an individual person, multiple people, or a company? Where are they from? When were they born/when did they die?

If you do not know any details about the artist, write unknown in its place.

What is the title of your object? Is there an official name? If not, what do you call it?

What year was your object created? If you are not sure, are there any clues on your object to help you find the year it was created?

If you have a general idea, you can write that (ex. 21st century, c. 2000).

What materials is your object made out of? Take a moment to look and list everything you see and feel.

Create your credit line. Who purchased the object? Was it a gift from someone or did you buy it for yourself?

Create your accession number:

_____ (year of acquisition) .

_____ (acquisition number)

If you are unsure what number acquisition your object was for your Museum, take a guess.
